This strategy is called "rent to own" and it's a great way to get yourself into a car without having to put down a large down payment or take out a loan. With rent to own, you simply make monthly payments on the car until you've paid it off. Once you've paid off the car, you then have the option to purchase it for a set price.

There are a lot of benefits to rent to own. First of all, it's a great way to get into a car without having to put down a large down payment. This can be a huge help if you don't have a lot of money saved up. Second, rent to own can help you build your credit. When you make your monthly payments on time, you're showing lenders that you're a responsible borrower. This can help you get approved for a loan in the future.

Of course, there are also some risks associated with rent to own. One risk is that you could end up paying more for the car than if you had purchased it outright. This is because you're paying interest on the monthly payments. Another risk is that you could lose the car if you don't make your payments on time.

Overall, rent to own is a great option for people who want to get into a car without having to put down a large down payment or take out a loan. However, it's important to weigh the risks and benefits before making a decision.

Here are some tips for finding a good rent to own deal:

- Shop around and compare prices from different dealerships.
- Make sure you understand the terms of the contract before you sign anything.
- Be prepared to make a down payment of at least 10% of the car's value.
- Be sure you can afford the monthly payments.
- Get a vehicle history report to make sure the car is in good condition.

Here are some additional benefits of rent to own:

- You can get into a car with bad credit.

- You can build your credit while you're renting the car.
- You have the option to purchase the car at the end of the lease term.
- You can get out of the lease early if you need to.

If you're interested in learning more about rent to own, there are a number of resources available online. You can also contact a local car dealership to get more
